

Police still looking to solve 1996 murder

It has been 10 years since the disappearance and murder of Tewksbury's Amy Sullivan

By STEPHEN BJORK

TEWKSBURY - This week marks the tenth anniversary of the last verified sighting of Amy Sullivan. Her skeletal remains were discovered behind the IRS building on Ballardvale Street in Wilmington on August 7, 1996. Her murder has not yet been solved.

Amy, 17-years old at the time of her disappearance, went by the name Brandi. She left her family's Tewksbury home at some point during the evening of June 6, 1996 and did not return the next morning. It was not necessarily uncommon for Brandi, who was not free of some personal problems, to runaway from home for short periods of time, so she was not immediately reported missing.

The last verified sighting of Sullivan was on July 17, 1996 in Chelmsford when a Chelmsford police officer observed Sullivan, her boyfriend Alexander Rhynd, and Neil Cluff sitting in Cluff's illegally parked van.

A medical examiner's report estimated that Sullivan's death was on, or close to, July 17th.

Cluff was later convicted of perjury for testifying before a grand jury that he had not seen Sullivan at all on July 17th.

Though ten years has passed, Tewksbury Lt. SEE STILL LOOKING PAGE 20

Holding onto tradition

Twice a day for more than half a century

Do you know when to be at school & when to be off the streets?

By BREANNA LEIBMAN

Every morning and night at nine on the dot, for a half-century or so, the familiar sound of Wilmington Fire Department's fire horn can be heard for miles around. The blasting horn can also be heard every time there is a fire to alert off-duty fire fighters.

The tradition started at least a half a century ago.

"It can be heard throughout the whole town, with the right wind and weather conditions," says Fire Chief Daniel Stewart.

Not so long ago, the majority of people in Wilmington worked close to home or were farmers. If there was a fire, the horn would tell off duty firefighters where the fire was by punching out the location.

In the 50's and maybe earlier, the horn would sound off at nine in the morning and nine at night, alerting kids when to be in school and when to be off the street.

Today, this aged fire horn remains at the old fire station on Church Street and is set off

The price of a gallon

What are Wilmington and Tewksbury paying at the pumps

By CHARLEY VALLAS

TEWKSBURY - Oh, we do love our cars, trucks, motorcycles and SUV's, don't we! We in the suburbs depend on them for almost everything from commuting to work, to taking the kids to sports and dance classes, to getting groceries or a bite to eat. And, of course, for summer vacation trips to the beaches, lakes and mountains.

However, as much as we love our vehicles, very few smiles can be seen at the gas pump these days as the price of gas continues to escalate past $3.00 per gallon. The Town Crier has done a little research in an attempt to shed some light on exactly what determines the price of a gallon of gas here in the Wilmington / Tewksbury area.

The first, largest and most obvious factor is, of course, the price of crude oil; we hear about that almost daily on the TV news. The major factors fall into the following four categories: The Price of Crude Oil, The Refinery Processing Costs/Profits, The Taxes, and The Marketing/Distribution Costs.

With crude oil pushing past $70 per barrel, and with each barrel containing 42 gallons, a gallon of crude costs $1.67 before the refining process even begins. The price of crude oil does vary, depending on the location of the refinery and the costs incurred in shipping to each refinery.

The refinery costs also vary depending on the final destination of the product, since each state sets its own regulatory requirements. Environmental programs, aimed at reducing carbon monoxide and other air toxics, also influence the refining costs. For instance, most states have passed legislation to restrict the use of a gasoline additive known as MTBE due to concerns surrounding groundwater contamination. MTBE is expected to be phased out in the U.S. completely within the next few years and will require changes in gasoline production and distribution. Other environmental programs put restrictions on the methods of transportation and storage. There are also seasonal blends for different areas of the country. Locally, our blend varies from summer to winter, as does the demand, which is usually 5 percent to 10 percent higher in summer.

Taxes are imposed on gasoline at the federal, state, and local levels. In some areas of the country there are even county taxes.

The distribution costs are largely affected by the distance between the refinery and the destination point. Gasoline is piped from the refinery to either the final destination directly or to a shipping terminal where it is loaded onto tanker ships for delivery to distant areas. Most of our local gasoline is shipped in via tanker ships and stored in an area near Logan Airport known as Gasoline Alley, which includes areas of East Boston, Chelsea, and Revere. From Gasoline Alley, it is trucked to the local service stations. Local labor rates for the drivers and the cost of diesel for the trucks play into the trucking cost. Hess is one of the few companies that has a refinery in the northeast located in Port Reading, NJ. This reduces the shipping distance, and subsequently the shipping cost, for the finished gasoline product.

How the final price at the pump is determined varies with the corporate policies too.

"Local competition is the largest factor in setting the price per gallon," says one Wilmington station manager who requested anonymity. "I

When the U.N. came to town

China demanded admittance

By LARZ E. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - December 11, 1959 was a night to remember when the Senior Class of Wilmington High School presented "An Evening at the United Nations." Students posing as national delegates or representatives to the U.N. debated whether Red China should be admitted to the U.N.

The Herbert C. Barrows Auditorium was quite new then. And the U.N. program had the 502-seat auditorium bursting at its seams. This program was big.

Unfortunately there was only one showing. Students in lower grades were allowed to attend dress rehearsals on the afternoon of the program. On Friday night, there were many people wishing the town had a bigger auditorium, but very proud of what the students had done.

The project came about after President Dwight D. Eisenhower expressed hope that schools would undertake such endeavors to teach students about the workings of the U.N. Whether Wilmington High School was the first school in the country to present such a program is not known, but it certainly was among the first.

Civics teacher Bob Saba organized, wrote, directed and produced the event, and he involved hundreds of people in the school. WHS senior Arthur Boudreau was the director, assisted by Joan Dukus and Sandra Bouvier. Lawrence Pellerin was the director of designs, decorations and layout planning; assistant director of same was Mark Doucette.

The setting for the program was a meeting of the General Assembly at the United Nations and consisted of speeches delivered by students.

China had undergone a revolution in 1949, and the Chinese mainland was then ruled by Communists. China had recently invaded Tibet and there were many references that evening to the crisis in Tibet.

Many of the speeches brought up the subject of communism. The speeches were given to the students by Saba. Presumably he wrote them, but his sources are not known. The speeches minced no words. Some assigned blame for the crisis in Tibet. Others, representing nations in the Communist bloc, sided with China.

More than 100 students took part as delegates, representing 81 countries. Of them, 35 delivered speeches, 11 in foreign languages. Narrator for the evening was Ed Curtis, who had won the Rotary Club Oratorical Contest the previous year.

The representative of the People's Republic of China was Ken Spinelli. The speech demanded that China be admitted to the U.N. It also referred to the capitalistic United States and her decadent ally, England.

Spinelli's delivery was so well-performed that after the program, more than one person approached him, saying, "I hope you don't believe all those things you just said." Spinelli assured them that was just acting, reading from a prepared speech given to him by Mr. Saba.

That week's Town Crier hailed Ruth Urbanas and Ken Spinelli as the outstanding stars of the evening. Urbanas was a fairly recent immigrant from Lithuania, a country that had also fallen into the Communist sphere.

Kenneth Slater appeared as the Dalai Lama from Tibet. "The nation of Tibet is but a stepping-stone to the future plans of Communism whose blood-stained hands are the very embodiment of the evil forces we so strongly seek to destroy," he said.

Stephen Brennick was the U.S. delegate. "There is no evi-

It's Your Money

THE OVERTAXED IRA

For most people, an IRA or a 401(k) is a first-class retirement savings tool with real tax deferral advantages. When they retire, they use the money to live on—or to live better than Social Security would allow.

First-class is fine; it's when the IRA gets into luxury territory that owners run into trouble. When there's a lot in the IRA and lots of other funds, too—enough to trigger estate taxes—the IRA can be subject to double taxation: estate tax and then income tax, too. (Add in, also, state income and estate taxes.)

One way to cut down on this double taxation is to use retirement-account cash to fund life insurance to be owned by an irrevocable trust. (Consider an immediate-payment annuity to fund it.) The insurance proceeds are not part of your estate (as long as you didn't own the policy), and heirs won't owe income tax on it.

What are your options? Discuss them with the financial advisors at:

Transrail: Not STB jurisdiction

(editor's note: The following letter was written by Representative James Miceli and was sent to the Surface Transportation Board in regard to the New England Transrail waste transfer facility proposed to be built on the Olin Chemical property at 51 Eames Street in Wilmington. It is being re-printed here at the author's request.)

The Honorable Vernon A. Williams
Secretary, Surface Transportation Board
Mercury Building, Room 700
1925 K Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C.

Re: New England Transrail, LLC - d/b/a Wilmington & Woburn Terminal Railway - Petition for an Exemption from 49 U.S.C. § 10901 to Acquire, Construct, and Operate as a Rail Carrier on Tracks and Land in Wilmington and Woburn, Massachusetts
STB Finance Docket No. 34797

Dear Mr. Secretary,
Upon review of the petition filed by New England Transrail it is apparent that they intend to operate a waste processing facility on the Olin site, which happens to include a component that would transfer the waste by rail; therefore, they are not exempt from state and local regulations.

As stated in the Comments filed by the City of Woburn, "49 U.S.C. § 10501(b) vests the Board with exclusive jurisdiction over 'transportation by rail carriers' and explicitly preempts state and federal law with respect to regulation of rail transportation. To come within the preemptive scope of 49 U.S.C. § 10501(b), NET activities must be both (1) transportation, and (2) performed under the auspices of a rail carrier." In its petition NET discloses that it intends to receive loose products (C & D material and Municipal Wastes) and grind and package them onsite to be loaded onto rail cars.

I completely agree with the comments submitted jointly by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection and the Attorney General. In Section II they explain what constitutes a solid waste handling facility in Massachusetts. This description should be given the utmost consideration when deciding this case. Taking into account the terms listed in this petition in conjunction with the two cases that are also referenced, Buffalo; Southern RR, Inc. v. Village of Croton-On Hudson, ___ F. Supp.2d ___, 2006 WL 1650675, *1(S.D.N.Y.2006) and State of New Jersey v. J.P. Rail, Inc., Atlantic Superior Court Docket No. C-41-06 (Chancery Div. Jun. 22, 2006), it is clearly demonstrated that the Surface Transportation Board should not grant an exemption to New England Transrail for any of the operations not directly related to transportation.

I strongly encourage you to settle this issue of jurisdiction once and for all and acknowledge that the Surface Transportation Board does not have jurisdiction over issues related to Waste Processing. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has regulations and policies in place to protect its residents from environmental and public health hazards please do not allow this company to circumvent the proper process designed to safeguard the citizens of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Representative James R. Miceli
Chairman

Transrail update

Communities banding together

Dear Editor,
All over the country communities are facing similar potentially unregulated rail wastes operations by rail.

On April 27, 2006 in a Letter to the Editor, we urged the residents of Woburn and surrounding communities to band together and send letters with comments of concern to the Surface Transportation Board (STB) in Washington DC regarding the Olin Site on the North Woburn/Wilmington Line. This is where New England Transrail proposes to operate a regional waste transfer station transporting waste from 400 trucks and 250 rail carloads per day. We had collected and mailed over 60 letters from Woburn residents to the STB. In addition, comment letters of concern from residents in other communities and many town and state officials throughout the country are posted on the STB website regarding docket #34797 at www.stb.dot.gov <<http://www.stb.dot.gov>>

On June 12, 2006 the STB stated their decision: "The comments received to date on the petition raise questions about the extent to which activities proposed to be conducted by New England Transrail come within the Board's jurisdiction." After this decision the STB extended their comment period to July 13, 2006 with replies to comments filed to be submitted by August 2, 2006.

On July 13, 2006 comments regarding New England Transrail, LLC to the Surface Transportation Board has given the communities of Woburn and Wilmington support from Mayor Duncanson of Middletown New York, to the States of Ohio, New Jersey, Colorado and so on. Mayor Duncanson recently commented: "We've got to join in and help the other municipalities in other areas that are facing this because there are a tremendous amount of small railroads that are popping up across the country."

Recently a Channel 5 Investigative News program and a Channel 5 Chronicle segment highlighted the Olin Chemical Site and New England Transrail on the North Woburn/Wilmington line. This three-minute video can be seen if you go to this web site: <http://mfile.akamai.com/12880/wmv/vod.ipsys.com/2006/0608/9343007.200k.asx>. Not only did this site make the news, another town (Middletown, New York) with similar issues was also viewed on NBC news in New York this past week.

The Woburn/Wilmington Transrail trash train nightmare has now become a national issue. Citizens in other states have now banded together with Woburn and Wilmington in support of one another regarding the proposed operation by New England Transrail, LLC.

Margaret Meads' quote still stands true:

"Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful committed citizens can change the world, it's the only thing that ever has."

Woburn Neighborhood Association, Inc.

Automobile accidents

Have you heard people say that even the most minor accident to a vehicle is damaging to the integrity of that vehicle, even if there is no obvious structural damage. Do you look for accident reports when car buying? How is it then that I see people every day involved in fender benders that don't have as much concern with themselves as they do their vehicles? If I only had one body for the rest of my life you'd be darn sure I'd take good care of it...oh yes, we do only get one body. Luckily, we can trade in our cars.

So, have you ever been in an accident? Afterwards, you may experience headaches, neck, arm or back pain, or you may feel no pain at all. Sometimes affects are not felt immediately - for months or years - but often latent pain, further injury due to weakened scar tissue, and loss of movement are revealed later if not healed properly.

The most typical injury associated with automobile accident is whiplash. More accurately termed cervical acceleration/deceleration syndrome, it is most often caused by rear end collisions due to the often unexpected, sudden, exaggerated thrusts of the head forward and backwards. These abnormal forces thrust the spine and surrounding structures beyond their normal physiological limits, triggering anything from hidden microtrauma to sustained severe, neurological damage.

Accidents occur - literally - in the blink of an eye. And while you may think unsuspecting neck structures are not injured because of a lack of pain, understand this: forces on the car are often less than that of the head and neck. Think of it as having a twelve pound bowling ball attached to a stick with some string and pushing it forward and backward in a matter of milliseconds. Voila, the visual of a head on the body during a collision. Up to sixty degrees of neck hyperextension occurs most often in small rear-end collisions with a speed as slow as three miles per hour. The average range of motion for neck extension is about forty five degrees. Add to this a sudden, jerking motion backwards fifteen degrees past normal and damage somewhere is created. Now step that up a notch to a slow ten mile per hour impact. Do you get the picture?

So what happens to create these injuries?

In a rear-end collision, for example, the spine and supporting structures are thrown initially into hyperflexion and then into hyperextension. With hyperflexion the head is propelled in a forward and downward motion. During this phase spinal nerves or discs can be damaged or compressed. The vertebral bones may be crushed anteriorly (in the front).

Hyperextension phase occurs when the head is forced backward past its physiological boundaries. During this phase the backside of the vertebrae may break away. Discs may be compressed from behind and torn anteriorly. Vertebral arteries may be stretched or pinched.

Both mechanisms can injure the many muscles supporting the cervical spine. These injuries may range from minor strains and microhemorrhages to severe tears.

Spinal ligaments are also prone to injury during both phases in an accident. These ligaments connect the vertebrae and hold them in place. Some of these ligaments are barely a centimeter long and maybe a few millimeters in thickness. Therefore, it isn't difficult to overstretch or tear them. When this occurs a weakness is created around the discs and spinal cord, creating an opportunity for cord injury or for the discs to slip out of normal alignment. Ligaments also take the longest time to heal due to lack of a direct blood flow source.

There are many common clinical symptoms stemming from motor vehicle accidents, many times in the form of headaches. These headaches are due either to the actual jarring of the nervous system or stem from the injured muscles or abnormal joint movement (subluxation) that are created, which can create localized and referred pain into the head.

Cervical disc herniations and irritated spinal nerves can create pain, numbing and tingling that extend into the arms, most often in a specific pattern. However, if the disc does not impinge upon a nerve, there may be no distinct pattern of pain. I've treated more than a few patients who have had latent disc herniations that didn't wreak havoc until years later after degeneration set in and the nerves became irritated and arm pain set in as did loss of neck motion. These injuries can often remain latent or mimic simple, neck soreness.

Injured muscles can also create soreness and pain; usually with specific movements. Over time, if not treated properly, pain-sensitive scar tissue develops and creates a tightness in the muscle and loss of motion due to the poorly healed chronic shortening of that musculature.

The neck muscles are also innervated by the same nerves that innervate the sinuses. Therefore, any disruption in the neck muscles lead to subluxations and poor posture, creating an impediment in the proper flow of information to and from the nervous system. The same nerves that innervate many of the neck muscles also innervate the sinuses. So it is common, over time, for people to develop allergies and sinus problems after motor vehicle accidents, even without gross bodily damage.

In addition, subluxations will only continue to impede upon the proper correction and healing of the joints, discs and surrounding tissues. That is probably why Chiropractic physicians are extensively studied as the leading treatment of whiplash injuries.

So what can you do? Preemptively, be sure to have the headrest in your vehicle set properly to decrease the likelihood of neck hyperextension in case of an accident. And, of course, drive carefully. Don't be a break hog just looking to be rear-ended. Seat belts may not be helpful in low impact collisions due to their relative constrictive nature of the torso, however, they may save you from propelling through the windshield and dying, which would make whiplash look like a simple blister.

In case of any type of accident, get your spine checked. State law mandates personal injury protection for all occupants through auto insurance, no matter who is at fault. In lieu of a diagnosis warranting medical or surgical referral, a marriage of chiropractic care and physical rehabilitation works well at correctly healing and rehabilitating the spine and surrounding structures.

If your car warrants a second look after a minor fender bender, so do you. Remember, you can't trade in your body. Although you may want to do so. So take care of it.

Here's to your health...naturally!

Letters to the editor

Crosses on trees

Dear Editor,

My first child (16 Yrs old) pulled out of the driveway for the first time the other day. Where did time go? Has my job as a driver educator ended with his getting his license?

Driver education started over 50 years ago, mainly in public schools. Today less than 50 percent is taught in schools Nationwide. The typical program is 30 hours of classroom and 6-8 hours driving. This is hardly sufficient to affect one's performance in something as complicated as driving.

The most effective way to learn new knowledge and skills is over time and allowing for practical application through practice. We should not rely only on traditional driver ed but should teach basic driving skills and safe driving best practices as we the parents have learned. In our hurry-up world driver ed should be a slow process.

There is a worldwide trend to maximize the experience gained before licensure that has led to a graduated driver's license (GDL) in many states. A GDL is typically a 3-stage license. Stage 1 is a learner's permit. Stage 2 is typically a limited driving license. This may include passenger restrictions, night and inclement weather restrictions. Stage 3 is full licensure. A violation may drop a driver back one or more stages. Where used these have resulted in double digit drops in fatalities among 16 year old drivers.

Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death among American teens age 15-20. Of these fatal crashes thirty percent involve drinking, sixty percent were not wearing a seat belt, forty percent were between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m., and almost half of fatal accidents with a 16 year old driver had friends in the car. Young drivers need to focus on driving not friends' conversations, cell phones, or radios.

A GDL teaches people to drive incrementally. Parents need to consider becoming stage 2 of driver training picking up where drivers ed has left off and continue teaching even after they have obtained their license. We have chaperoned them for the first sixteen years, a few more months isn't too much to ask. One fatal crash is too many, there are far too many crosses on trees!

Similar situation in NY

To the editor:

As someone who lives in a community facing a similar unregulated rail waste operation as is the case in Massachusetts, I applaud Sens. Kennedy and Kerry for condemning the pre-emption that potentially allows such operations to escape from local oversight, zoning, and other regulations. I also applaud my fellow citizens.

Here in Croton on Hudson, NY, Sens. Clinton, Lautenberg and Schumer, as well as Congressman Maurice Hinchey and Congresswoman Sue Kelly have come out swinging as well. Indeed at a time when government often seems dysfunctional, these bipartisan efforts represent the best of what government can be - and should be.

And the importance of citizen involvement.

To smokers who use Silver Lake: Please stop using the beach as your ashtray! Our family finds it disgusting to have to sit, swim, and play with your butts all around. Perhaps designating a smoking area would help smokers follow the (posted) rules?

Wilmington gets a lot of credit for its 4th of July events, and deservedly so, but I'd just like to say that Tewksbury did a wonderful job on the 4th again this year. Nice job, Roy Patterson and everybody else!

Letters to the editor

Another cell tower?

Dear Editor,
Ya gotta be kidding me! Good lord, have we learned NOTHING from the fiasco in Tewksbury with that behemoth "flagpole"?

The Wilmington Planning Board is holding a meeting on August 1st, 8:15 p.m., to discuss the plan of having a "WIRELESS COMMUNICATION FACILITY" at "C&J LAWN EQUIPMENT" on MAIN STREET in WILMINGTON. That's directly across from Rocco's and right next to a neighborhood of houses on Main Street.

Aside from the eyesore these cell facilities create, aside from the loss of property value because of the proximity to the cell facility, my key concern is that the jury is still out about the long term health effects involved in living too close to these cell facilities and being constantly exposed to microwave and gigahertz transmissions. Why is the jury still out? Because these things haven't been around LONG enough to have completed any long-term studies to prove it is safe.

Question: Is there a plan to compensate the homeowners in the area for their loss in resale value? And who will pay that; C&J? The Town? The cell company?

Question: Is there a plan to cover the medical expenses of the people in the area should that situation arise?

Don't get me wrong, I love my cell phone too and these cell facilities are part of today's necessities. But they belong hidden away in unpopulated parts of town, NOT on Main Street next to residences! However, greed and the almighty dollar appear to say otherwise.

What about that hill at the Town Park; nice and high for an antenna, hidden by the trees... Wouldn't THAT be a safer site and provide cover for the eyesore? Plus it's on Town land so the town would see some revenue (Remember? The town is looking for alternate sources of revenue...). Or how about at that old airport site; not many houses around there to bombard with high frequency waves. Maybe along I-93? Lot's of open land there too!

Will the Planning Board and Town Government REALLY sell out the people they are supposed to represent and allow this to happen? Stay tuned folks; film at eleven.

Kelly Renee Cavanagh weds Daniel Joseph Veerman

Kelly Renee Cavanagh, daughter of John and Bonnie McGrenaghan of Stratham, New Hampshire, exchanged wedding vows with Daniel Joseph Veerman, son of Joan and the late Robert Veerman of Burlington, Massachusetts, on Sunday, July 2, 2006 at their home in Wilmington, amidst family, friends, and fireworks.

Kelly and Daniel were particularly blessed by the presence of their beloved children, Sean, Theodore, Stephanie and Liam, who joined them in the celebration of their new family.

Reverend Stephen Bjork solemnized the couple's vows before the Lord.

A honeymoon trip to New York City in September is planned, where Kelly, a lifelong Yankee fan, and Dan, a diehard Red Sox fanatic, will endure an early test of their mixed marriage by attending a game between the teams at Yankee Stadium.

After the ceremony, the groom paraphrased Yankee great Lou Gehrig by proclaiming himself the "luckiest man in the world."

Everything's a Story

by Andrea MacMullin

Oh I try. I really do. I feel like I come so close to really, really getting it together, but I just can't. I don't miss it by much, I am always so close, but sometimes I think I am going through life with no time to spare.

I'm not ever really late, I usually just arrive right on time. My kids are never late for school. They arrive promptly at 8:59 for the 9:00 o'clock bell. Although I think I am never late, I know there are a few who would beg to differ.

I was fifteen minutes late once to pick up my friend Maureen. I was supposed to arrive at her house at 6:15, but I didn't get there until 6:30. But I figure for events like just going out with friends, a scheduled time is more like a guideline. I always factor in the fifteen minute window, which I am never late for.

My family and I are the last ones seated at church just before the priest makes his way down the aisle. I wouldn't technically call it late, just in the nick of time. As usual.

It's not in my nature to be early.

Take last week for instance. I had all the best intentions to get all of my work in early to my ever patient and forgiving editor, Stephen Bjork. It was deadline day, and I was close to have everything wrapped up, with a few hours to spare. (This is usually my biggest mistake, thinking I have hours to spare, or thinking I can take it easy because I have so little left to do, that I can finish it up later).

I had an excursion at the library with my kids in the afternoon, and was gloating over the fact that once I got home, I could finish up my work in plenty of time before dinner. Unusual for deadline day.

In the middle of a severe thunderstorm, I had a feeling the rest of my afternoon would not go as smoothly. As the emergency generator kicked in at the library, I had a sinking feeling that my lifeline to work would be without power. And I don't have a generator.

Once home, it was realized that yes, we were without power. Well, we've never been without power for more than a few minutes, so I was sure it wouldn't be long.

Hours later, I began to panic. What was I going to do.

My husband decided I could use his laptop once he arrived home. At least three hours of battery power should be plenty of time to get me through. Great. All is not lost.

He took the laptop to eat, since there was nothing to cook with, and so I could get to my work. Things were going great. I even had a spare minute to run out for a quick check on a possible story. It was only going to take ten minutes.

And ten minutes later when I got home the laptop was locked up tighter than Fort Knox. Apparently, security is tight at my husband's place of employment and all of the computers are password protected.

And my husband didn't have the one and only cell phone we own. It was sitting on the counter- also without power.

So I waited. An hour later they returned home. He zipped in the password, and no sooner did I commence typing away, the battery too had expired. Sitting in the dark, I resorted to my last hope.

I got in the car and traveled to a friend's house the next town over. By now it was near 10:00 p.m., and any hopes of turning in early were absolutely out of the question.

To make a long story, and a long day shorter, my husband called just as I got there, the power was back on at home Good thing because the computer I was using was not reading the CD my work had been transferred to.

I turned in my work at the exact same time I usually do. Not exactly late, not exactly early.

Moral of the story? I'm not really sure Except, maybe invest in a generator.

Jessie V. Frederickson

Strong Catholic, devoted mother and homemaker

WILMINGTON - Mrs. Jessie V. (Gaeski) Frederickson, 78, of Wilmington, died Thursday, July 13, 2006, at the Melrose-Wakefield Hospital following a long illness. Jessie was born August 11, 1927, in Peabody, Massachusetts, she was the daughter of the late John and Mary (Philipow) Gaeski, she was all Polish and very proud of it. To know Jessie was to know her stories that she shared with many of her family and friends. Jessie was born with Cerebral Palsy, but that was not going to stop her from living a wonderful life. She was educated in Peabody, this was before the Disabilities Act, but she was determined to graduate. When she was told that she couldn't take cooking classes like other girls, Jessie took nutrition instead and learned how to prepare meals for her family to come. Jessie loved to sing and had a beautiful voice, she was often called upon to sing God Bless America in school, but Danny Boy was her favorite song. She also sang at her family Pub in Peabody. Jessie often mentioned the Warren Lunch, where she would work with her father preparing meals for the working men.

Jessie met Chester O. Frederickson "her Chet" at a dance, she told everyone that he was the love of her life and they were married for 52 years. They moved to Wilmington in 1960, where they raised three wonderful children. Jessie couldn't push her children in a carriage, because of the braces on her legs, but she talked about rocking them, she tried to be the best homemaker she could be. She was so proud of her children and their accomplishments. Jessie's grandchildren lit up her life, she often spoke of her visits with Samantha, Tammy, Robin, Rachel, Ryan, Randy and Andrew. They brought so much joy to her life. Jessie was a faithful friend, she was very appreciative of everyone that came to visit or help. She was very strong in her Catholic Faith and devoted to her priests at St. Thomas Church as well as the Boston Catholic TV. Jessie was a wonderful teacher, for everyone who came into her life she showed them goodness, kindness, strength during adversities, the beauty that she saw in everyone, and she had a smile that lit the room, she will be missed by many.

Jessie is survived by her beloved husband Chester O. Frederickson of Wilmington, she was the devoted mother of Loretta Kline & her husband Richard of Townsend, Jon O. Frederickson & his wife Ann of Derry, NH, and Theresa Lucas & her husband Mark of Windham, she was the dear sister of Jennie Studzinski of Peabody, and of course she was the loving grandmother of 7 grandchildren.

A Funeral Mass for Jessie was celebrated Monday, July 17, at St. Thomas Church followed by interment in her family lot in Wildwood Cemetery. Funeral arrangements were under the direction of the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc. Memorial donation's in Jessie's name may be made to the United Cerebral Palsy of Metro Boston, 71 Arsenal St., Watertown, MA 02472.

Summer is not over

Learn to swim in August

READING - In the Summer, the Burbank YMCA realizes that not everyone may be around for the entire 8 weeks. That is why they break their Summer Session into two 4-week sessions.

Learning to swim is not only a fun thing for children it is also fundamental. As parents we want to give our children all of the advantages. Swim lessons are an important piece of that advantage.

The Burbank YMCA will be conducting a second 4-week swim session beginning July 24 and ending August 20. There are lessons for children age 3 and older. During this 4-week session classes are held twice per week.

"Children learn better with repetitive teaching," says David Witkus, Program Director at the Burbank YMCA. "Having the classes twice a week reinforces what they learn each week."

Don't hesitate, classes fill quickly. For more information, or to receive the latest Summer Brochure, please call 781-944-9622

I must leave you for a little while.
Think of me often,
laugh as we once did.
Let me fill your heart with joy.
When life is hard to bear and teardrops fall like rain, let my spirit comfort you.
I may be out of sight,
but I will be waiting for you on the other side.
Do not ever fear, for I am near.
In your heart.

Summer "Concerts on the Common" Series goes country

WILMINGTON - The "Sounds of Summer" Concert series continues on the Wilmington Town Common on Wednesday, July 26 from 6:30 - 8:00 p.m. with a toe-tapping country music performance by The Don Campbell Trio. This concert is sponsored by Analog Devices, C. C. & Sons Builders, Citizens Bank, Danversbank, HRH Insurance, Lowell 5¢ Savings Bank, & Realty Executives Northeast.

A self-taught multi-instrumentalist and singer-songwriter, Don's fresh but familiar voice has taken him from his hometown of Scarborough, Maine to his second home in Nashville, Tennessee — and just about everywhere in between. Mixing a fiddle and a bass guitar with smooth vocals, Don along with Tonya and Andy, will create a blend of old and new favorites. Don has opened for country music legends like Randy Travis/Willie Nelson, Merle Haggard/Ricky Skaggs, & Toby Keith, and American Idol Carrie Underwood.

Bring dinner, chairs or a blanket and relax on the Town Common as we welcome this new group to Wilmington. Based on the excitement around this performance, we hope this is the first of many visits! See you there.

Wilmington's Michael Kaminski takes command of U.S. Army Aeromedical Center

By MICHELLE OWENS
Army Flier Staff Writer
U.S. Army Aeromedical Center personnel said goodbye to Col. Suzan Denny and welcomed Col. Michael Kaminski during the change-of-command ceremony at Howze Field Tuesday.

Col. Sonny Moore III, U.S. Army Forces Command chaplain, began the ceremony with an invocation. Brig. Gen. Donald Bradshaw, commander, Southeast Regional Medical Command/Eisenhower Army Medical Center, Fort Gordon, Ga., was the guest speaker for the ceremony.

"The command of the U.S. Army Aeromedical Center is bigger than just Lyster Army Health Clinic," said Bradshaw. "It involves the Army Aeromedical Activity and Directorate of Health Services role for Fort Rucker, interfaced with the Training and Doctrine Command Surgeon's Office in coordination with both the Army School of Aerospace Medicine and the Aeromedical Research Lab - a very complex and difficult task. Suzan Denny has filled all of these roles superbly."

Denny expressed her appreciation of the USAAMC personnel she commanded. "I am extremely proud of the 29 U.S. Army Aeromedical Center Soldiers who deployed into combat, the 21 who have returned to us safe and sound, the six who remain deployed and the two who are preparing to go as we speak," said Denny. "I'm prouder still of the thousands of lives they've helped to save and the daily conduct of their medical duties."

Denny served as commander of USAAMC for the past two years. She is going to Alexandria, Va., to serve as the Chief of the Army Nurse Corps Branch, U.S. Army Human Resources Command, Health Services Division. Denny closed her speech with a quote from Clara Barton, a Civil War nurse and founder of the American Red Cross. "I may be compelled to face danger, but never fear it, and while our Soldiers can stand and fight, I can stand and feed and nurse them."

Kaminski said he was excited and honored to be offered the opportunity to lead USAAMC. "I intend to carry on the many outstanding medical services provided for our aviators, their families as well as our eligible retirees," he said. "My wife and I... look forward to being a part of (this) community." Upon graduating from Norwich University in Vermont, Kaminski was commissioned as a second lieutenant and served as a medical platoon leader with the 1st Cavalry Division at Fort Hood, Texas. He returned to school and received his Doctor of Optometry and Master of Science degrees. He served at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; the Republic of Panama; Fort Sam Houston, Texas; and in Washington, D.C. Kaminski was a first-responder during the Sept. 11 attack while serving at the health clinic at the Pentagon.

His awards and decorations include seven Meritorious Service Medals; two Army Achievement Awards; National Defense Service Medal with one service star; Overseas Ribbon; Global War on Terrorism Service Medal; Ranger Tab; Parachutist Badge; Expert Field Medical Badge and the Army Staff Badge. Kaminski is a member of the Order of Military Medical Merit and was awarded the "A" Designator, which is the Army Medical Department's highest award of excellence.

Denny was the first commander to serve at the USAAMC who was not a flight surgeon. During her service at Fort Rucker, Denny successfully converted Lyster Army Hospital to Lyster Army Health Clinic, saving AMEDD more than $5 million, while still providing care to more than 30,000 beneficiaries. She also eased the realignment of the U.S. Army Ambulance Detachment, known as Flatiron, to the Training and Doctrine Command while still providing support to the mission.

Denny guided the staff at USAAMC through the conversion of the new Tricare contract, established Veterans Affairs and Department of Defense agreements, and received full accreditation from the Joint Commission for Accreditation of Hospital Organizations just two weeks after the hospital became Lyster Army Health Clinic. Denny served as the chair for the Combined Federal Campaign generating more than $215,000 in contributions two years in a row.

Michael is the son of Walter and the late Evelyn Kaminski. He graduated from Wilmington High School with the Class of 1973.

Caira nets MVP honors at Agganis Classic

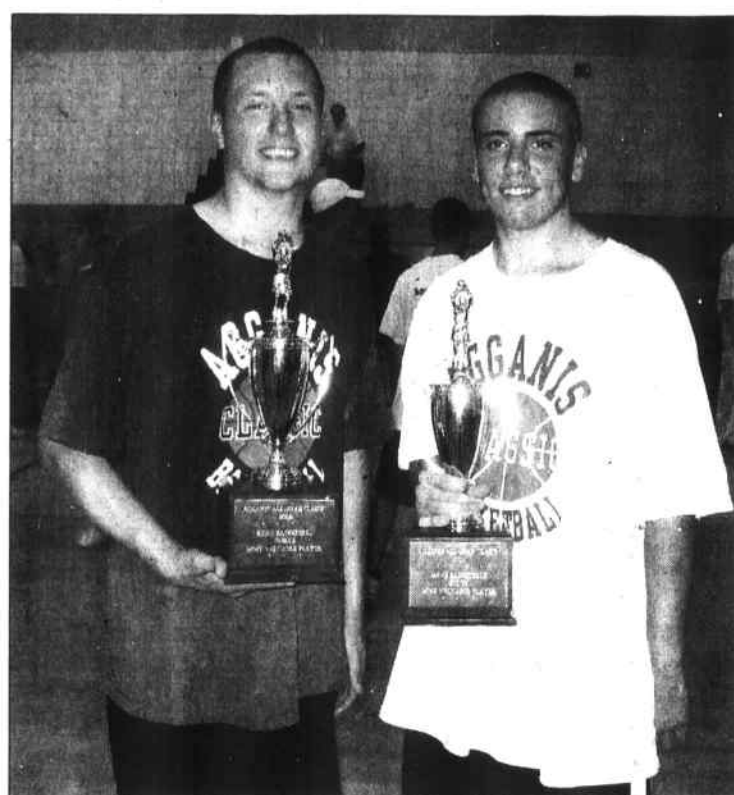

By LOUIE CIMAGLIA
Sports Correspondent

If you have watched Wilmington High School basketball over the last four years, you probably have heard the names Brian Caira and Joe Herra. The two were critical parts in helping the Wildcats to consecutive Cape Ann League Championships and playoff appearances. Simply put, the two made Wilmington High School basketball fun to watch for the past four years.

The chemistry of the two and other seniors, Tom Miele, Sean Murphy, Andy Otovic, and Peter Rastellini, helped make the past four years some of the best in the history of High School basketball. Recently, the two attended the Agganis Basketball All-Star Classic, with Caira receiving MVP honors.

The Classic is an assembly of all of the best players from the North Shore area, including the Northeast Conference, the Merrimack Valley Conference, and the Cape Ann League.

"The competition was tough," said Brian Caira. "There's more competition than a normal game against Manchester, but it doesn't have the atmosphere of a game against North Andover or Masco."

Caira topped the best of the bunch with 13 points, enough to earn him the title of most valuable player. That's really saying something. These kids are some of the best in the state.

Caira also talked about what it was like having Herra along with him.

"It was a lot of fun playing with Joe," he said. "It was a fun way to finish my high school career. By playing with Wilmington resident Brian Caira (left) was named the MVP of the North team during this past week's Agganis Basketball Classic. He stands with Brian Benson of Pope John High School in Everett, who was named the South team's MVP.

someone I have played with for the last four years. Joe's a great player. He would have liked to make a few more shots than he did, but it was still a lot of fun."

Caira will be headed off to Merrimack College in the fall, where he will be trying out for the basketball team. Caira's leadership and sportsmanship will be greatly appreciated at Merrimack, surely as much as it was appreciated here in Wilmington.

Mike Barry injured and out for the season

Football season won't be the same without No. 72

By LOUIE CIMAGLIA
Sports Correspondent

Wilmington football means a lot to a lot of people. It means everything to Mike Barry.

The football program has become quite the tradition that so many people have been a part of and so many people follow so closely. For some, the Wildcat tradition represents more. The Wilmington High School football team is a family. Many hours in the gym, on the field and in the film room add up to a close fraternity between players. When one person is removed, everyone feels the impact of the loss.

Right now, senior to be Mike Barry cannot participate in this upcoming football season. He broke two vertebrae in his neck a few days ago in an accident outside of the football field. His football career is over. His true passion, is no longer an option for him.

Mike Barry is a special person. He has the spirit and courage to move beyond this. The people who know him have complete faith that he will, not only pull through, but be on the sidelines for every game, cheering on his team and his teammates.

This community, which is created by Wilmington football, will take Mike's injury to heart. Mike's younger brother, Tom, asked the team to work a little harder this year, give a little more and be a little better. For Mike's sake. Let's go win for Mike.

Amidst tears, the team understood what Tom was saying, and what to do with this trying situation. It is motivation. Mike wanted to be a part of this team. He wanted to see his last year of football was going to be one he could remember forever.

The bond created on the gridiron is one that is difficult to explain. The sharing of blood, sweat, tears, on the same field striving towards the same goal is an experience that cannot fully be understood unless one is a part of it. The friendships forged on the field are eternal. When one man goes down, it does not go unnoticed.

There is not a doubt in the minds of many that this event will propel the Wildcats to a great year. Nobody wants to let Mike down. Because right now, that's what this season is about. This is Mike's season.

No one can take that away. Not Pentucket, not Masconomet, not North Andover. This is Mike's year.

What do you think the first words out of Mike's mouth were? "I can't play football anymore?"

The game of football is Mike's passion. He loves it. He has been waiting since last Thanksgiving for the start of the 2006 season. Mike Barry's passionate example is one that hopefully will be followed by the team and will lead the team to success.

"Hopefully, (the team) will come up stronger," said his brother Tom. "It's just one more thing to fight for. Mike's heart and strength is something to fight for."

When asked what he thought Mike would say if he could address the team right now, Tom said, "He would probably ask everyone not to feel bad for him, but just keep working hard, and not to give up. I know that when I'm out there, I'm not just going to be playing for me anymore. I'm playing for Mike, too."

The Wilmington High School football community is deeply saddened by the news of Mike Barry's terrible injury. Knowing Mike he will overcome this adversity, and he will be out there very soon to cheer the team on. That really says something about a man's character. This will be very difficult for him.

He'll have a long rehabilitation road to travel, but knowing Mike he'll be there on the sidelines as soon as he can with a big smile on his face supporting his friends and his teammates. His courage before the accident, during this tough time, and in the future days, is a true inspiration to every single member of the football team.

Mike, get well soon. You and your family are in the hearts and prayers of not only the Wildcat football community, but the entire community. We can't wait to see No. 72 back with the football family.

Wilmington High senior to be Mike Barry, a member of the football team, was injured in an off the field accident and will not be able to play for the 'Cats this season. (courtesy photo)

Harry Agganis Football Classic

Herra. Mayo and Downs help lift North past the South

By DAN IGO
Sports Correspondent

SALEM-- Despite competing with players from traditional powerhouse schools Xaverian, Everett, and St. John's Prep, three Wilmington graduates more than held their own at the 46th annual Agganis Football Classic held Friday night in Salem.

Joe Herra, Zack Mayo and Stephen Downs helped lead the North squad to a 21-12 victory over the South. Herra threw a touchdown pass, while Mayo and Downs both figured prominently in the running game.

The Agganis Football classic is named after Harry Agganis, the local athletic legend that starred as a football player at Boston University and was a first baseman for the Boston Red Sox. He died in 1955 of a massive blood clot at the age of 26. The Agganis Foundation has given out over one million in scholarships.

Herra, Mayo, and Downs weren't the only locals who participated in the game. Tom Byrne and Dave Tiberio of Tewksbury and Steven Dittilio of Austin Prep were on the South team. Byrne was a captain of the South team.

Byrne and Tiberio started on special teams, and Mayo and Herra started on offense for the North. Herra hooked up with Downs on a nice 14-yard completion, and Mayo had a few nice runs to get the North in striking distance. However, Byrne stuffed the North running back for a loss, and at the end of the first quarter the game was scoreless.

It was clear from the start the South team was going to be more run-oriented, while the North was more willing to advance the ball through the air. Halfway into the second quarter Andrew Fodera of Peabody returned a fumble 73 yards to give the North a 7-0 lead.

The North was able to score once more before halftime, with Herra leading the way at QB. Unlike his counterparts on the South team, Herra looked poised and confident in the pocket. He led his team on a multi-play drive to close out the half. A big 29-yard completion to Wakefield's Bobby Taylor put the North into the red zone. Herra eventually connected with Taylor's Wakefield teammate Marc Fiore on a 13-yard touchdown pass. The first half ended with the North holding a 14-0 lead.

The third quarter was much of the same, as the North dominated on both sides of the ball. Despite the best efforts of Byrne, who figured prominently at linebacker for most of the game, the North was in control. Mayo, Downs, and Herra continued to shine on offense, with Mayo in particular running for solid gains. Herra ended the game competing 4-of-9 passes for 62 yards and a TD. Shane Brown of Wakefield punched one in from 3 yards out, and the North took a 21-0 lead going into the fourth quarter.

The South did not give in an inch in the fourth, and the results were seen on the scoreboard. An 18-yard TD pass by Danvers' Alex Perry to Winthrop's Jarrett Herdt finally put the South on the board, with the score now 21-6 after a failed PAT. With time running out, Lynn English's Chris Carroll threw a 6-yard TD pass to Salem's Tony Figueroa to make the score 21-12. However, this was too little, too late, and the North walked off with the win.

Despite Herra's strong performance, the North's MVP award went to Fedora. Perry won the South's MVP award.

Wilmington took the lead in the bottom half of the inning on some timely hitting, good plate discipline and smart base running. Josh Mayo led off the inning with a walk, and Wilmington's Lentini pitched a scoreless third inning, and his team put another run on the board after Foley singled in Eric Legro. Tewksbury tied it 4-4 after a furious fourth inning

"He's hit the ball pretty well all year," Wilmington Coach Don Foley said. "He's a good contact hitter, and today he hit the right spots. We really needed him."

"I was disappointed in the defense in the middle of the game," he said. "We missed some plays that could have shortened the game up a little. We also had a few more walks today than I would have liked. But beyond that, I thought most of our at-bats were solid. We made the most of opportunities. We've been pretty solid for the most part the last few games."

Congratulations also go out to the Cubs and their coaching staff who had a great playoff run, played hard until the final out and exhibited great sportsmanship.

Gath enjoys first career victory at Star Speedway

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The odds were certainly not in favor of Kristen Gath as she and her race car with a newly rebuilt engine lined up for the start of the 350 Supermod feature event at Star Speedway in Epping, New Hampshire recently.

By the end of the race, however, the odds hardly mattered, as the 19-year-old Tewksbury resident had blown away the competition on her way to her first career win, besting some very experienced and very talented racers along the way.

It was a huge moment for Gath, and the crowd in attendance at the Star Speedway seemed to enjoy the win almost as much as Gath herself, knowing how hard she had worked to earn the victory.

"Everyone was really great. When I finished the race and stopped, a swarm of people came down to see me," Gath said. "My dad said you could hear the crowd going crazy, because they knew I had come so close before."

Yes, Gath had come so very close just the week before to securing her first victory, but fate dealt her a cruel hand on the night, as just laps away from victory she suffered engine failure and had to deal not only with a tough defeat, but also the prospect of rebuilding her engine.

"We thought we had it the week before. We thought it was our night, but the cam let go and we couldn't get the win," Gath said. "So we scrapped together a motor and we were kind of hoping just to finish. We did not expect much, but we ended up winning."

The 'we', that Gath refers to is her crew which consists of father Dave Jr., as well as grandfather Dave Sr. and cousin Richard. Gath's father and grandfather got her started in racing about 11 years ago. Dave Jr. raced motorcycles, while the elder Gath was a drag racer, so it was only natural that Kristen would pick up the sport, first as a go-kart racer.

"My Dad had taken me to a track where they were racing go karts and I said Dad, can have one of those," Gath recalled. "I got one the next week and it just progressed from there."

She has progressed to the point where in her fourth year of open wheel racing she was able to defeat the likes of former NASCAR shorttrack champion and Star Speedway champ Rob Wilcox among many other far more experienced racers, reaching speeds of up to 110 MPH.

"It felt really good to beat those guys because they are so good," Gath said. "Especially because we did not expect it at all after throwing everything together the way we did."

Gath is one of few females in a very much male dominated sport, but she has not let that stop her. She says that she is treated fairly by her fellow racers, but at times they do take note of the fact that she is the only female on the track. At least now Gath can find some competition. That wasn't always the case, as she recalled with a laugh.

"When I was younger a lot of kids did not want to race me because I was a girl," Gath said. "Even now, sometimes when people see me when I pull out, they will think I am just a little girl because I am only 19."

When thinking of female race car drivers it is impossible (at least for me) not to think of Indy car racer Danica Patrick, who thrilled race fans with a near victory in last year's Indianapolis 500 and brought some great attention to the sport of racing.

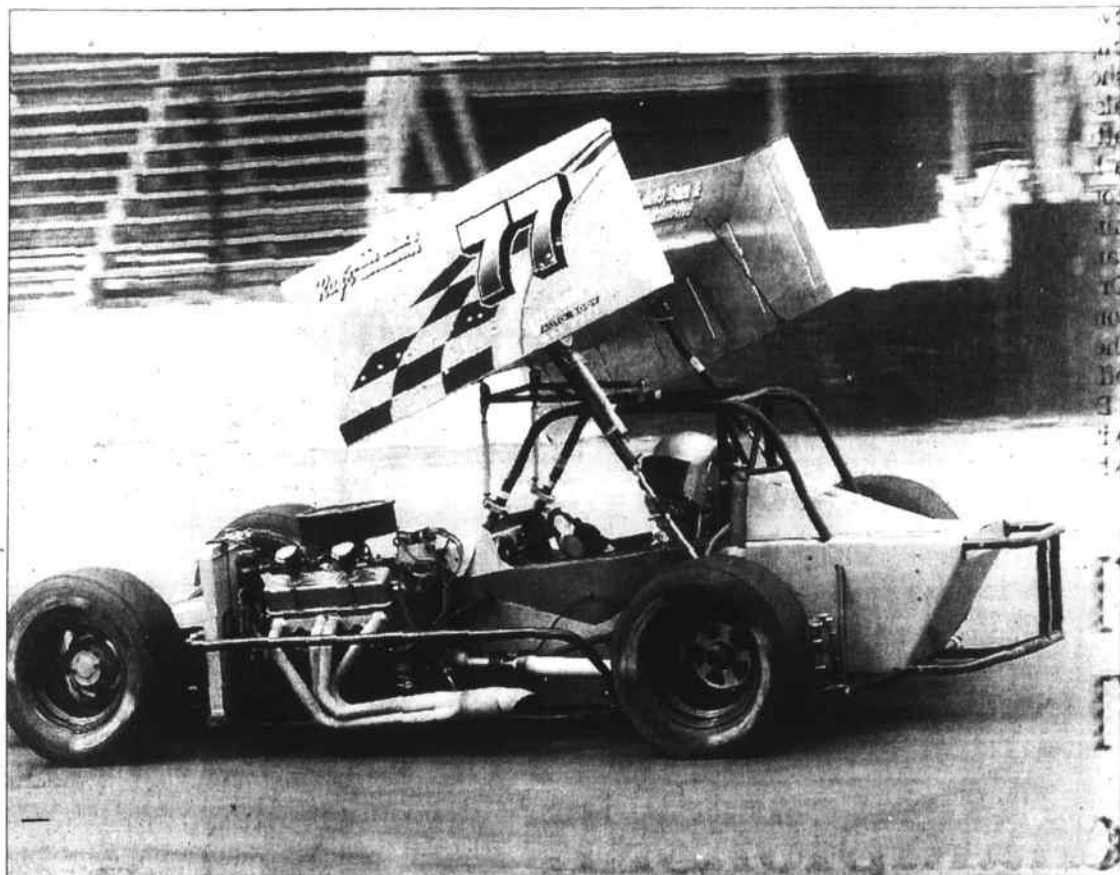

With her success, Gath has heard Patrick's name in comparison to hers on numerous occasions.

"People bring it up all the time," Gath said. "I think it's great what she has done. She has shown that women can be successful in this sport, which is great because a lot of people don't even know that women can do this."

Tewksbury Sr. All-Stars just fall short

By ROB CUZZI
Sports Correspondent

The ping of the ball hitting the bat, the smell of freshly cut grass, and the feeling of snatching that line drive with the leather has been what has brought children of all ages coming back to the little league fields.

The same can still be said for the Tewksbury Senior League baseball all-star team who have just recently lost in the championship final of the District 14 championship round.

No matter what the outcome may have been each player shared a common bond in loving the game in which they fought so hard to play. From the top to bottom of the lineup each player gave an effort that could be seen through each droplet of sweat to the extensive dirt on each uniform.

Scott Oberg was the constant warrior throughout the tournament with a dominating win against the Billerica team, shutting them out, as well as getting the game winning hit in that same game to win, 1-0.

Anthony Miano hit multiple homeruns to power up a lineup, along with Justin Tormano who added significant heat within the middle of the order. Tom Fabiano added superb leadership that translated on and off the field that sparked the ball club behind him.

Defense was a catalyst to the success of Tewksbury, behind center fielder T.J. Greene and second basemen Michael Oliveira, who both snatched everything that came their way. The constant professional who checked his emotions when he walked onto the field was John McDonald, who played the game with the hustle and grit needed to win at any level.

Steve Feldhouse and J.J. Heider supplied timely hitting throughout the tournament when the team needed it the most. Rob Mcvey threw exceptionally well in the last game against Billerica, which will likely lead to a strong performance as a dominating veteran pitcher in next year's all-star festivities. And Sean Teel gave the club a lefty presence at the plate hitting the ball to all fields whenever called upon.

Each player brought a certain aura to the ball park that made every inning energetic and uplifting for everyone involved. The one constant from every athlete on the team was heart. When dealing with a group of all stars the right group of coaches must be assembled to get the best out of their players. From the manager Bob Henry, to the coaches Ken Miano and Jim Reynolds, each man brought a positive attitude and atmosphere that made winning obtainable before the first pitch. However, one ingredient that can not be taught or drawn out of a player is heart. No matter the situation that the team had found themselves in, the coaches reached deep to find the fortitude to persevere.

Falling into the loser's bracket early in the tournament Tewksbury fought endlessly to make their way back into the tournament as a top contender. Rallying off a strong win against the Billerica National team, they found themselves in the heat of championship run. Needing to beat the Billerica American squad twice to take home the District Trophy, Tewksbury won its first game in impressive fashion in a 1-0 game.

Sadly, the second game was not as fitting as they lost, 9-8. Despite the score the final game showed just how much heart and emotion could be put into one team when each and every player shares the same goal of winning.

Trailing by four runs going into the final inning Tewksbury was able to scratch three runs on the board against a strong Billerica team. Granted the end result was still a mark in the losing column, the entire Tewksbury Sr. National all-star baseball team roster proved that in a game of talent, those with heart can make a difference on any given day and on any given diamond.

THE BIOLOGY OF DRAGONFLIES: Saturday, August 12, 9:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m.

Join local dragonfly expert, Jim MacDougall, and learn how to identify dragonflies and damselflies. We will spend most of our time in the field catching odonates and learning identification techniques. We hope this will be the first of many outings that will help you develop a serious understanding of and appreciation for this amazingly diverse group of insects. Advance registration is required. An equipment and reading list will be sent upon registration. FEE: $30 ($25/Mass Audubon members). For more information or to register, call 978-887-9264.

Judith Nitsch Engineering Holds 5th Annual "Introduce a Girl to Engineering" Day with Harvard University

BOSTON - Judith Nitsch Engineering, Inc., a Boston-based civil engineering, land surveying, transportation/traffic engineering, and planning firm, recently hosted its 5th annual "Introduce A Girl to Engineering" Day. More than 80 participants took part in the half-day event held at Harvard University, which focused on how earning an engineering degree can lead to various career paths.

Fifty-three 5th to 12th grade girls, including Wilmington resident Colleen Brothers, spent the morning learning about engineering from over a dozen women engineers at the event. The day's activities included an introduction to engineering and a panel discussion about how an undergraduate degree in engineering can be combined with an advanced degree to pave the way for a wide range of careers, including becoming a lawyer, doctor, dentist, or manager. These discussions were broken up with engineering-themed bingo, organized by engineers Erin Venezia, Katherine Maker, Nicole Holmes, Cheeta Soga, and Chelsea Christenson, P.E. from Judith Nitsch Engineering. In addition, Deborah Humiston at Ultimate Treasure Hunts organized a GPS treasure hunt on the Harvard Law School Quad.

"After years of growth, the percentage of female U.S. engineers has stalled at just 10% - nowhere near the parity that we believe can be achieved," said Judy Nitsch, President of Judith Nitsch Engineering. "We hope that by showing girls that engineering isn't limited to very specific careers, and by demonstrating that engineering is fun, more girls - as well as their parents and teachers - will realize that engineering is a rewarding career. Our firm is dedicated to raising awareness and educating others about the role that women play in engineering, and "Introduce a Girl to Engineering Day" is an important part of that effort. We're already looking forward to planning next year's event!"

Nicole Holmes, a civil engineering graduate of Northeastern University and a project designer at Judith Nitsch Engineering, moderated the panel discussion, which included information from:

• Cheeta Soga, a Project Designer at Judith Nitsch Engineering. Cheeta has a BS in Civil Engineering from the University of British Columbia and an MS in Civil Engineering from the University of Illinois, Urbana.

• Kelly McQueeney, P.E., a Civil Engineer who works in the Environmental Health and Safety Department at Harvard University. Kelly earned a BS from Worcester Polytechnic Institute and an MS from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

• Yun-Ling Wong, a doctoral candidate in biological engineering at Harvard University. Ling earned BS degrees in Chemical Engineering and Biology from MIT.

• Mary Neuner Caravella, a doctoral candidate in Business Administration at Harvard University. Mary earned a BS in Electrical Engineering from Marquette University and an MBA from Harvard University.

• Stephanie Pollack, Esq., an environmental attorney at BlueWave Strategies. Stephanie earned BS degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Mechanical Engineering and Public Policy, and a JD from Harvard Law School.

Started by the National Society for Professional Engineers, the Society of Women Engineers, and IBM in 2001, Introduce a Girl to Engineering Day aims to increase interest in math and science among girls. Now organized by the National Engineers Week Foundation (<http://www.eweek.org>), Introduce a Girl to Engineering Day has become a global event, reaching over one million young women each year.

Lt. Governor Healy honors Action Ambulance Service, Inc. for their participation in Texas hurricane relief efforts

On Wednesday May 17, 2006 a ceremony was held on the front steps of the Massachusetts State House honoring Mass. EMT's and Paramedics for their roles in the relief efforts after Hurricane Katrina and Hurricane Rita.

On Thursday September 22, 2005 at 5:00 AM, Action Ambulance Service, Inc. Wilmington, Massachusetts, received a call from the American Ambulance Association requesting assistance to pre-deploy as many Advanced Life Support Ambulances to the Reliant Center in Houston Texas as soon as possible. The request for the ambulance assistance was placed to the American Ambulance Association directly by FEMA.

Action Ambulance Service, Inc. spent the remainder of Thursday working on logistical issues and was able to deploy four (4) ALS units. Action contacted Massachusetts authorities to determine the potential for utilizing Air National Guard resources to deploy the units via an air evacuation. Action met stiff resistance from Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency and the Executive Office of Public Safety on the request. Therefore, the vehicle and crew members were forced to make the long trip via the nation's interstate system.

The vehicles, with staff, food, water, medications, medical supplies, generators and chain saws left Wilmington, Massachusetts on Thursday at 1930 hours.

While the crews were heading towards Houston, Action worked on locating a place for them to stay the night on Friday, September 23, 2005. Phone calls were made and lodging was located for the crews in Little Rock, Arkansas. The crews stopped in Little Rock and prepared for an early departure knowing they needed to get on the Western side of Hurricane Rita.

The crews awoke, on Saturday September 24, 2005, showered, had a hearty meal and headed for a new rallying point which was Austin Texas. During their drive they were re-routed to Tyler, Texas. They arrived in Tyler, Texas and four (4) Action Ambulance Service, Inc. units were immediately dispatched to Beaumont, Texas. At this time Rita had passed through the area and they knew it was going to be a long slow drive due to the amount of devastation they encountered.

During their ride to Beaumont they stopped at Tyler County Hospital in Woodville, Texas at 01:00 hours on Sunday September 25, 2005. The hospital was being used as a simple shelter. The crews met another group of ambulances from Mobile Medical Response (MMR) of Lansing, Michigan. The Michigan contingent happened to have a physician from Michigan with them. The crews were able to make phone contact with Administration of Action and were faced with a large problem. They had sick and injured patients at the ER with minimal staff. They contacted the mayor of Woodville and asked the mayor for permission to open the ER and he gave them his blessing. They made a decision to open the ER and treat patients. They were quickly overwhelmed from a patient standpoint and a political standpoint.

The EMS units saw all types of medical and trauma related injuries. They set up a landing zone next to the hospital and started triaging, treating and flying the most critical of patients to larger medical facilities when they could. As the morning rolled on the problems became worse. The Hospital's Board of Directors met and wanted to know how they were going to get paid and since they had no money they demanded the hospital be closed immediately. In the late morning hours, nursing staff psychologically collapsed, physicians left the hospital and the remaining nursing staff was told to leave the facility. However, the EMS units kept working and caring for patients.

By 10:00 am on Sunday, September 25, 2005 the EMS units were running out of oxygen, medical supplies, and the pressure on them to close the ER was intense. They were making plans to evacuate the ER of EMS personnel since the political pressure was so great. The Massachusetts delegation called back to Action's administration for advice. They were instructed to take care of patients while a political situation was developed and implemented. Action's administration frantically started making phone calls to Texas authorities. Action's administration was able to locate a Department of Health Services representative. The representative told Action they are aware of the politics and pressure they are under. The State of Texas is praying for the Massachusetts group to not close the ER. They know the situation is like a war zone and the streets of New York City. They have to make a stand and keep the ER open at any cost and help is on the way. They did not know when it was going to arrive but they were working very hard on getting help deployed to the hospital. The information was passed on to the EMS units and they made a stand and as a result the ER NEVER closed.

During the ER crisis at Tyler County Hospital, the Texas Director of Public Health flew to the ER, landed in a Blackhawk Helicopter in the front of the hospital, entered the ER and acknowledged the teamwork and accomplishments of the EMS at Tyler County Hospital. He also informed them the cavalry was on the way and they did the right thing by opening the ER and treating patients who needed medical care. At approximately 5:00 PM on Sunday, Federal help arrived in the form of 2 Disaster Medical Assistance Teams (DMAT), National Guard troops and other necessary resources.

On Monday, September 26, 2005, they were asked by FEMA to move 15 miles north of Woodville to Colmesneil, Texas. Upon arrival they were asked to assist the City. Upon their arrival and assessment of the situation in Colmesneil, they determined an immediate need for a field hospital. They opened a second hospital, this time a field hospital, in less than thirty six (36) hours in a quick and efficient manner. EMS units were working in temperatures of 120 degrees with extreme humidity. While working in the field hospital EMS staff saw a variety of medical and trauma related patients especially heat related illnesses. In addition to treating patients, they set up landing zones for medical evacuations, coordinated ground evacuation of patients and worked with the hospital in Woodville to triage and place patients into appropriate medical settings.

By the end of Monday, FEMA has placed the units in charge of all EMS related operations for the County of Tyler Texas. The units stayed and assisted within the County of Tyler, Texas for a total of (28) twenty-eight days. Upon their departure, all who took part in the event, had a new understanding of what it takes to meet the total needs and expectations of fellow man within a disaster situation.

Spinners promoting Breast Cancer Research with local post offices

The Boston Red Sox affiliate Lowell Spinners are proving to be a big hit with U.S. Postal Service customers in 26 Post Offices in the 018 ZIP Code area.

The two organizations have entered a partnership aimed at promoting the sale of Breast Cancer Research (BCR) stamps to help to find a cure for breast cancer.

They kicked off the BCR promotion June 29 when Massachusetts Postal District Manager John W. "Mike" Powers presented a large framed BCR stamp poster before the June 29 game against the Oneonta (Detroit) Tigers to Lowell Spinners General Manager Tim Bawmann and starting pitcher Kris Johnson for display in the Spinners souvenir shop.

In continuing with the dual attack against the dreaded disease, ballplayers from the Lowell Spinners signed pink (the color signifying breast cancer awareness) baseballs that will be given away along with a sheet of Breast Cancer Research stamps to the winners of free raffles to be drawn in the designated Post Offices on July 27.

Persons entering participating Post Offices can sign up for the drawing. No purchase is necessary. Each raffle winner will receive three single signed baseballs and a sheet of BCR stamps.

A Lowell Spinners player to be determined will be present in the lobby of Lowell's Main Post Office at 155 Father Morrisette Blvd. on July 27 from 10 to 11 a.m. to sign autographs.

Post Offices taking part in the breast cancer awareness promotion include: Andover, Billerica, Burlington, Chelmsford, Dracut, Dunstable, Haverhill, Lawrence, Methuen, North Andover, Lowell Main Post Office, and Highland and Downtown Stations in Lowell, North Billerica, North Chelmsford, North Reading, Nutting Lake, pinehurst, Reading, Tewksbury, Tyngsborough, Wakefield, Westford, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

He said the Breast Cancer Research stamp was authorized by Congress in 1998 and since then, more than $50 million has been raised for research through the sale of BCR stamps. Stamps sell for 45 cents each and the amount of money received in excess of the first class postage rate is donated to help researchers find a cure for breast cancer.

According to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation:

—One in nine women will get breast cancer; every three minutes a woman is diagnosed with breast cancer, and every 12 minutes a woman dies from the disease.

—Breast cancer is the leading cause of death for women between the ages of 35 and 54.

—According to statistics, nearly 185,000 women and 1,400 men are diagnosed with breast cancer each year and nearly 46,000 of those will die from the disease.

Amalia is one of only 1,083 Georgetown University undergraduate students recognized with first honors. There are approximately 6,700 undergraduate students studying at Georgetown.

Undergraduates receiving first honors earned a grade point average of 3.7 or better on a 4.0 scale.

"We are extremely proud of Amalia's accomplishments at Georgetown," University President John J. DeGioia said. "Her academic achievements speak to the talent, work ethic and outstanding quality of Georgetown's student body."

Still looking

Detective Dennis Peterson still keeps the file on his desk. A mass card from Sullivan's funeral service still hangs on the wall of his office and he looks at it every single day.

Peterson, who has been on the case since the beginning, still reviews the file on a regular basis and follows up on leads, which still do come in on occasion.

"The hardest thing about the case was that her boyfriend was not willing to cooperate with the investigation," Peterson says.

Upon the discovery of Sullivan's body, Rhynd hired a lawyer and refused to participate in the investigation.

A classmate of Rhynd's and acquaintance of Sullivan's at Shawsheen Valley Technical High School, who requested anonymity for this story, described Rhynd as being devastated by Sullivan's death and described the two of them as being "best friends, more than anything else."

In Wilmington, the case was handed to Detective Michael Begonis. Begonis, now Wilmington's Chief of Police, does not classify the matter as a "cold case."

"Dennis (Peterson) and I have been working together on the case since it was a missing person case," Begonis says. "I still think about the case constantly."

The file is still being reviewed and investigated by Wilmington police. New detectives are often given the file with the hopes that a fresh set of eyes may pick up something new that had gone undetected.

Begonis believes that the case will be resolved at some point.

"Somebody is going to say something eventually," Begonis said. "Nobody keeps that inside forever."

In a separate conversation, Peterson echoed the sentiment.

"I'm totally convinced that the person responsible won't keep this to himself forever," Peterson said.

Anyone with any information in this case is encouraged to contact Tewksbury, Wilmington, or State police.

"Even if you don't think it is substantial, any information may be just what we need," Peterson said. "I don't care who breaks the case, and I don't care how the case is broken; I just want to see this solved."

The price

drive up and down Main Street each morning to see what the other stations are charging and I adjust my price accordingly."

Another station manager stated, "I have no say at all in the decision of how much to charge per gallon. That decision is done strictly by the corporate office."

Another local price factor is a particular gas station's marketing strategy. According to two local station managers, stations which have a convenience store attached can and do sell their gasoline for little or no profit, and even at a loss of a few cents per gallon at times, since the profit from sales within the store makes up for the lost gas profits. The low gasoline prices, comparatively speaking, bring the customers in, and the sales of goods other than gasoline account for the profits.

Stations that have mechanic services or car washes also have that alternate source of revenue and can absorb the lack of profit from gas. The stand-alone "Mom & Pop" stations do not have that ability and are becoming less common as a result.

Massachusetts does have a law, which attempts to protect the Mom & Pop stations by preventing corporate owned stations from selling gas at an unfair lower price per gallon. However, one need only look at the stations being built these days to notice the times are a changing. Stand alone stations just aren't being built and more of the existing ones are disappearing all the time.

Location is also a significant factor in determining the price at the pump. For instance, stations located near a highway ramp tend to have higher prices than those located further in town. Stations located alongside highways are serving a captive market of highway travelers interested in quick stops and who are happy to find any station open. That market can tolerate a higher price than repeat customers might be willing to pay at their usual station.

So with all that said, what really determines the local price of gas in Tewksbury and Wilmington? There are some local factors, such as taxes and local competition, but the lion's share of the costs still comes down to the cost of crude oil and the refinery's costs and profits.

Anthony R. Ong graduates from Clark University

WORCESTER - Local student Anthony Reyes Ong of Wilmington, a graduate of University of Mass/Amherst with a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science degree, has recently graduated from Clark University with a Master of Business Administration degree. Currently, Anthony is a senior consultant at public Consulting Group, Inc. in Boston.

At this past commencement ceremony, Clark University's 101st graduation, the school awarded 518 Bachelor degrees, 263 Master degrees, and 33 Doctorates.

Internationally known economist and New York Times columnist Paul Krugman was the commencement speaker. He is the professor of economics and international affairs at Princeton University. Krugman urged students to play a greater role in public affairs. "You should get involved for your own sake as well as for the sake of your country. ... Even campaigning for the losing side can be rewarding. ... 'Try to live for something more than yourself.' Krugman received a Doctor of Humane Letters (D.H.L.) degree.

Town of Wilmington Police Department warns of potential scams

During the past several weeks the Police Department has received a number of reports from residents regarding attempts to obtain personal information over the telephone or through the mail or E-mail. Although most people are now aware of the need to protect their personal information from strangers there is no limit to the number of ways in which people can be tricked into giving up private data.

The following are some of the ways that local residents have been contacted.

Educational Loans for College. The advertising suggests that you can be eligible for thousands of dollars in state and federal grants for a pre-payment of several hundred dollars. Many times either no information is forwarded or a list of available grants is mailed. This list is identical to one that is routinely available in High School Guidance Departments or in on-line searches.

On-line Nigerian Check Fraud. A local resident met an individual on-line in a chat room. The individual befriended the resident and sent him Money Orders in the mail with the understanding that he would deposit them in his account, and then return a percentage of the deposit in the form of a bank check mailed to her... in Nigeria, Africa. There are many forms of this Nigerian Scam however all of them involve sending some of the money back in the form of a bank check. The deposited checks are returned as worthless, and the victim not only has their check cashed by the suspect, but they frequently owe restitution to the bank.

Lottery Winnings. A resident is contacted by mail and advised that they have won a lottery worth thousands of dollars, however to claim their prize they have to send a check or money order for several hundred or thousand dollars to show their interest in claiming their prize. Some people have actually been contacted a second or third time with an explanation that the paperwork has been delayed and that additional money is necessary before payment of the lottery winnings can be made.

Home Equity or Refinance Loans. Although it is true that some companies solicit business by phone, you should NEVER provide personal information such as your social security number or credit card number to anyone who contacts you by phone. Identity theft and credit card fraud have become rampant in recent years and usually it only takes a few hours to charge thousands of dollars to one's credit card without their knowledge.

Because of its nature, fraudulent activity on the phone, internet or mail is very difficult to investigate and prove because its origin frequently is out of state or even outside the country. Paper trails waste hundreds of man-hours in investigations.

Protect your assets. Protect your privacy. Report suspicious activity to the Wilmington Police Department at 978-658-5071.

dence that the Chinese Communist regime would represent China in the spirit envisaged by the (U.N.) Charter," he said. "It has fought the U.N. in Korea, and still stands condemned as an aggressor against the United Nations. It seized Tibet by force. It promoted the war in Indo-China."

James Cosman spoke as one of the representatives from the U.S.S.R. "Actually, the 'crisis' in Tibet, as it is called by the Capitalistic nations, is not really a crisis at all. The war-mongers of capitalism use this as an excuse to build a false economy by turning out more and more tools of war every day." The speech called for the U.S. to withdraw its forces from Taiwan and the other Chinese islands.

Two representatives spoke from West Germany, although that country was not a member of the U.N. at that time. Peter Neilson was handed a speech by Saba and told to translate it and deliver it. At the time, Neilson was a junior in his third year of German, but the translation was far beyond his abilities. His father, Capt. Larz, suggested he ask for help from the Kreyes.

Rev. Rudolph Krey was a German Lutheran minister who lived on Andover Street. One of his daughters, Priscilla Krey, was the other speaker from West Germany. She was born in Germany during World War II.

Neilson took his speech over to the Kreyes, and the translation was complete in about two hours. Then he had to go to work on the pronunciation.

The speech by the delegate from Mexico, Angela Sanborn, made some observations on the United Nations itself. "The United Nations was intended to be a tremendous force for good ... never intended to be an end in itself, but a means to an end. We must return to the original purpose of the United Nations and take hold of certain ideals."

The week of the program, 135 packages were delivered to the school. Most contained flags, donated by the embassies of the various nations. Students in the school's business program had been assigned to type letters to the embassies.

A large parade was scheduled before the program, and the Town Crier reported that 1500 troops from Fort Devens would march in the parade. That information proved to be incorrect. Some people along Main and Church streets waited for the troops that never arrived.

order. One student became the Ambassador from Hathaway Acres. Another was from Cranberry Bogville.

Annette Visconti (Shelley) read the invocation, as the delegate from Belgium. Other students who spoke were: Lawrence Pellerin, Ethiopia; Robert McCue, Sweden; Carole Ann Rice, United Kingdom; Joan Dukus, Canada; Thomas DelVisco, India; Stanley Ashdown, Pakistan; Edward Palino, France; Charles Sweet, France; Warren Layne, Albania; Alan Ford, Israel; Donna May, Spain; Carol Rauseo, Iran; Rita Paiva, Columbia; Carol Randall, Jordan; Joyce Carlton, Portugal; Phillip Komenchuk, Canada; Fay Waterman, Czechoslovakia; Sandra Joseph, U.S.S.R.; Amanda Brabant, Italy; Charles Coste, Yugoslavia; Barbara Abromovitch, Poland; Doris Lemire, Australia; Joan O'Connell; Sandra Bouvier, Greece; Joseph Bevilacqua, Italy; Virginia Carpenter (Doucette) India; John Tobey, United Kingdom; and Diana Imbimbo (Miladin), Nationalist China.

In 1971, the People's Republic of China was seated in the U.N., replacing the Republic of China (Nationalist).

department moved up the street, but quickly realized that the townspeople had come to see the horn as a part of Wilmington life.

When the public got wind of the idea that the fire horn might not be used anymore upon completion of the new Public Safety building, many citizens wrote letters to the Chief advocating for the fire horn.

The Wilmington Historical Society also voiced its opinion. "The commission discussed it because it was a long standing tradition," said Carolyn Harris. "Our goal is to hold on to our town traditions. For years people would listen to the 9:00 bell and go oh, wow!"

Fond memories of the horn can be heard from many Wilmington citizens including Tracy Lamb who grew up right near the old fire station and recalls its affect on her as a child.

"It was comforting and made me feel safe knowing that help was right next to me," says Lamb. "It also reminded me of my grandfather who served on the Wilmington Fire Department in the 70's."

It is because of the sentimental value for many that this horn remains active. Although we have the new technology of cell phones and pagers, a little bit of the old can still be heard with the 3-3-3 blast from the horn every time there is a fire or when the clock strikes 9.

"It helps us maintain our small town quaintness and values," says Harris.

Camp Wakanda open Sundays

READING - How would you like to swim in a clean, fresh lake, surrounded by beautiful, rich woodlands? A place not far from your home where parking is free, there are no crowds and there is a wonderful family atmosphere? Now you can!

The Burbank YMCA's Camp Wakanda, located in Boxford, has a scenic waterfront that will be open to the public on Sundays from 11:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. for your enjoyment.

The waterfront has a large sandy beach with docks. The docks separate the water into different levels for individual swimming abilities. There is plenty of fresh water and sunshine on the beach. Unlike a lot of local beaches, Camp Wakanda also shaded areas with picnic benches. These areas, pavilions, located at Camp Wakanda are a great place to play games, eat your lunch and socialize. Use of Camp Wakanda is free for people with family memberships and only a mere $15 per family. This is a small price for a day filled with fun!

Camp Wakanda will be open Sundays starting July 9th and will run through August 20th. There is always a YMCA life-guard on duty. For more information, please call Dave at 781-944-9622 x224.

Host families agree to include their student as a family member. We have one semester, as well as a full academic year students. ALL STUDENTS SPEAK ENGLISH and will be arriving from Germany, Brazil, Denmark, Spain and various other countries!

Burlington couple lending a helping hand

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

Burlington's Steve Harris and his wife Raina Wissing Harris are the type of people that see a problem, no matter where it is in the world and immediately go to work to try and fix it. This was the case on a visit to Belarus in January when they discovered the Young Men's Christian Organization (YMCA) was in need of assistance with their programs.

"Not for profit organizations in Belarus cannot ask for money," Wissing Harris said. "Fundraising is a very complicated process."

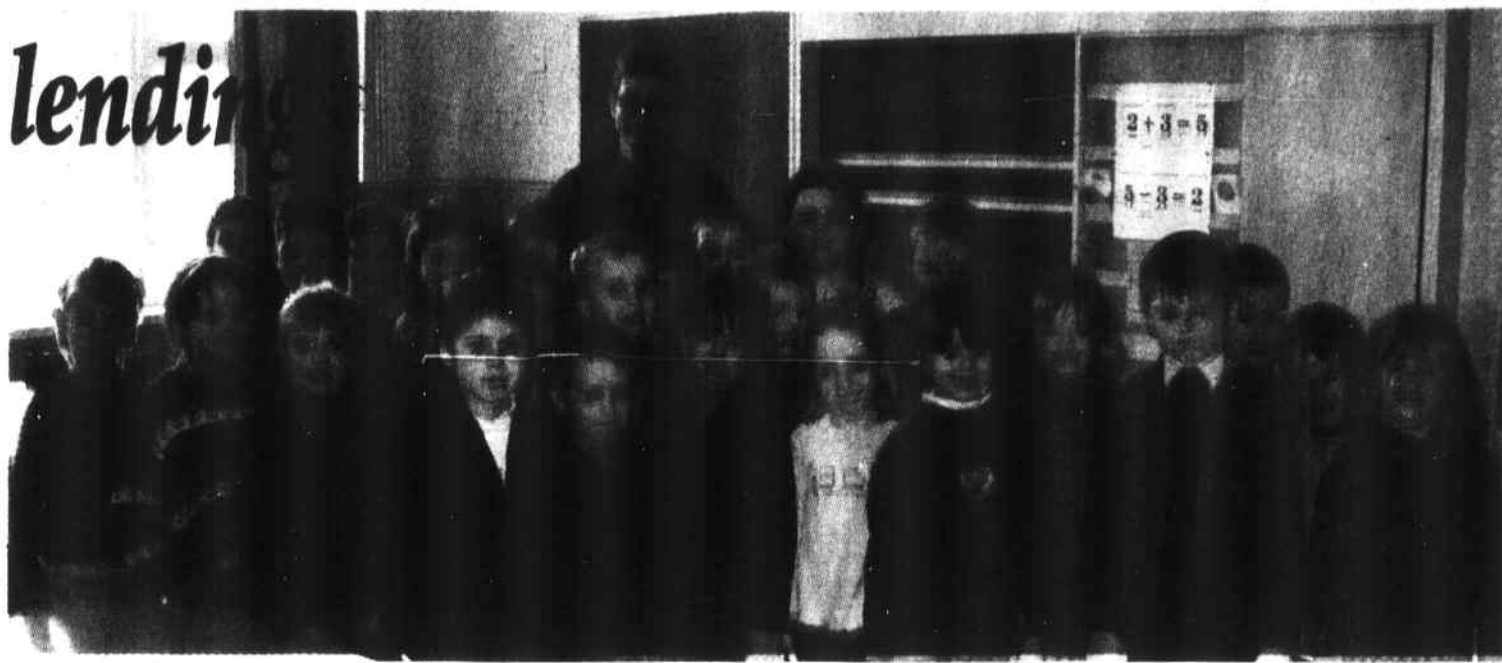

She explained that under Belarus law, a separate corporation has to be established whenever money is involved. The paperwork alone does not make it worthwhile for groups like the YMCAs to do direct fundraising.

The YMCA Belarus has a presence in seven cities. It started on February 14, 2000.

Most of the people involved with the YMCA Belarus are volunteers. They spend their free time organizing and running the programs because they care about the future of their country - the children.

The YMCA in Brest, Belarus is run out of the National Board Chairperson's apartment. The group is looking for a way to pay for a dedicated office for that branch.

Wissing Harris noted, "The office for the YMCA in Minsk is located in a one-bedroom apartment because the YMCA pays for the office by renting it to university students. The YMCA uses the living room as an office during the day."

Hands across the sea; local Y's helping a sister program in Belarus

"The way the YMCA Belarus operates is different than the YMCA of Greater Boston where we have beautiful facilities for our members."

To upgrade the Brest facility, the rental cost would be approximately $3000 a year. Since the average income of the members is less than $300 a year, it's difficult for the YMCA members to give.

"That's a different world from us," Wissing Harris said. "The North Suburban branch of the YMCA of Greater Boston spent about $5,000,000 on renovating their building in Woburn."

Belarus is located East of Poland and North of Ukraine. Minsk is the capital city.

The Harris first became involved with Belarus just about five years ago when they became involved with the Chernobyl Children's Project, which helps gets kids out of the areas of the Ukraine and Belarus that became contaminated after the Chernobyl Atomic Energy Plant meltdown. Since that time they have hosted two girls, who are now young women.

Both people have visited the Harris home twice. However, now that they are of college age, the United States Government has denied them a third visa for fear they would try to stay in this country.

As a result, Steve and Raina decided to take a trip to Belarus last January. Before going, Raina, who sits on the Board of Managers for the Burbank (Reading)/Wakefield YMCA (a branch of the YMCA of Greater Boston) wrote a letter of introduction to YMCA Belarus National Board Chairperson Alexander Drachuk and Secretary General Alexander Artushenko.

Upon arriving in Belarus the Harris were warmly received by Drachuk, who along with Artushenko was a fighter pilot in the Air Force of the former USSR. The two had teamed up to establish the Y in their homeland.

"When we talked with Drachuk, he was looking for any kind of collaboration," Wissing Harris said.

She added, "Everyone we talked to, even the kids, knew of the YMCA of Greater Boston. They knew we were the longest running and most successful."

The couple was told of what the YMCA Belarus was doing and the obstacles they faced. The YMCA has little resources because the members have little income to spend on anything but life's essentials such as food and transportation to and from work.

"Alexander asked if there was a way we could work together for the sake of the children and the young adults," Wissing Harris said.

She added, "No matter where you are in the world, the YMCA teaches the same core values: caring, honesty, responsibility and respect. In a country that has little to offer teens and young people, the YMCA Belarus is a shining star.

RAINA WISSING HARRIS (rear) stands along with students from the YMCA Belarus during her trip. At some point Wissing Harris would like to host several children at the Burbank YMCA summer camp.

"The YMCA Belarus programs are: Ten-Sing; Scouting; English School; Youth for a Healthy Way of Life; Leaders School; and Sports. They involve children from the pre-teens to the university and give them structured activities filled with adult supervision, guidance and values."

Wissing Harris is a prolific author with five murder mysteries and three technical volumes under her belt. Both she and her husband know quite a bit about leadership having either run their own company (Billerica based Resource Power) or managing projects on a consultant basis.

The Harris knew exactly how they could help the Y of Belarus. On returning home she started writing a course on leadership skills that could be presented to YMCA members interested in that aspect.

The couple returned in April and Wissing Harris actually taught the course. Language was not a problem because when a child in Belarus reaches the second grade they must learn English.

"LITTLE MAN" HAS LITTLE WIT

"LITTLE MAN"
GRADE: **

The idea of a baby beating up a grown-up is funny, and from this idea comes "Little Man," a comedy entirely centered on a shrunken version of Marlon Wayans' head. He, from the neck up, plays a 2-foot-6 con named Calvin Sims, who masquerades as an abandoned baby in order to infiltrate the home of a yuppie couple (Shawn Wayans, Kerry Washington) to steal back an enormous diamond.

Technically it's an impressive feat: Wayans' head - in a ruffly baby bonnet - is superimposed onto the body of a child actor. Dressed in footed pajamas and pastel sweaters, he's still a tough guy (his would-be parents are puzzled as to why their baby has tattoos), and it's occasionally a decent sight gag to see this tiny figure mix it up with the various bad guys chasing the diamond.

But "Little Man" quickly sags like a loaded diaper. The Wayans brothers (the movie was directed by Keenen Ivory Wayans, and written by Keenen, Marlon and Shawn) fill the empty spaces with breast-feeding an jokes, diaper jokes, pointless car chases. Buried under all this is a rather sweet story about families, but it's hard to see it amongst all the tastelessness.

"Little Man" has little wit; it's good for a few giggles but will be quickly forgotten.

"PIRATES OF THE
CARIBBEAN: DEAD
MAN'S CHEST"
GRADE: ****

"Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest," is the swashbuckling sequel to 2003's "Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl," with a third film will set sail next year.

Director Gore Verbinski has spun sea-worthy tale on this voyage. Summer movie audiences, "Dead Man's Chest" is truly worthy of your doubloons and galleons and pieces of eight.

It's that tawdry buccaneer Johnny Depp who'll have you pounding your peg leg on the theater floor in salute. Swaying around in a constant state of controlled bewilderment, three sheets into the wind, his turn as Sparrow is the prize of the seven seas, equal if not superior to the performance that won him

Oscar nomination in the first film. Depp is the center of the mayhem, and its the other aspects of the spectacle that circle him like sharks.

The story has more twists than fishing line caught in a gale. The humor and dialogue shall blow ye down, although some of the plotting is darker than the ocean on a moonless night. The visuals are eye-popping, and may require you to wear a pirate's eye patch when you're done.

Keira Knightley makes for a daunting buccaneer as British society fixture Elizabeth Swann. On the verge of her wedding to Will Turner (Orlando Bloom), an unscrupulous government official trumps up charges against the lovebirds and sends them to prison.

Will is swindled into chasing down Sparrow, a fugitive at sea who's got his own problems. Legendary ocean phantom Davy Jones (Bill Nighy) has handed Sparrow the black spot, a warning that he's cleaned out a spot in his locker for our beloved anti-hero.

So grab yourself a sea ration and a bottle of rum, or a soda and popcorn, is that's more your thing, and drop anchor with this summer treasure. Aye-aye!

"SUPERMAN RETURNS"

GRADE: ****

In "Superman Returns," the Man of Steel makes his first appearance in nearly two decades to save the day, the planet, and Hollywood's dwindling box office receipts.

To head this new edition, director Bryan Singer (the first two "X-Men" movies) selected Brandon Routh, a charismatic and almost unknown young actor. Routh, who at times looks eerily like Christopher Reeve on screen, performs well enough but the true stars of this film are its many special effects gurus and production designers.

Director Singer, who turned down the third "X-Men" to take the helm here, successfully renders the engaging story created

However, the English taught in the schools is based on the style used in Great Britain. Wissing Harris found that the young people in Belarus like all things American and want to learn English as it is spoken in this country.

In the second phase of trying to help out the Belarus Y, she and her husband have gathered together over 70 pounds of books, magazines, DVD's, CD's and anything else of an appropriate nature they could find to send over to Belarus. The biggest problem to overcome was the cost of shipping, which is about $40 per-10 pounds.

However, one Belarus person who teaches English in the Y program recently wrote to Wissing Harris and said, "It's pleasant to receive your letters. Thank you for your wish to help us. If you manage to get any material my pupils and I will be very grateful."

There are seven differences in the second picture. Can you spot them?
ANSWERS: Sign, Arm, Tail, Mouth, Nose, Baker's hat, Cake.

"I always buy books, CDs and so on when I go to Minsk. But it's difficult to find records where English-speaking people read texts or dialogues. They are often read by our teachers.

"There are few books for little children.

"I had to give some traveling lessons last year. I couldn't find any good films. I bought one DVD movie with six short films but the quality was too bad. Buying a CD or DVD, it's impossible to check the quality. "You understand everything only at home.

"Fortunately I gave a rather good lesson about Washington, D.C. I used Power Point to do it. "So if your community donates anything to teach and learn English, I will be happy and thankful."

With all of this experience and the letter of appreciation, Wissing Harris said, "I approached Kathleen Walsh, Executive Director Burbank YMCA, and asked if there was any way we could support the YMCA Belarus. The Burbank and Wakefield YMCA branches of the YMCA of Greater Boston will hold a YMCA Belarus Week starting September 16 through September 23. It will be an event to introduce the YMCA Belarus to our YMCA community and ask for donations.

"We're looking for English teaching material, CD audio children's books of all levels, ESL (English as a Second language) teaching material, "G" and "PG" rated DVD movies, and teach yourself English programs. We are also looking for help to pay for the postage since it costs approximately $40 for every 10 pounds.

"To reach the Burbank YMCA, you can call 781-944-9622.

"We want to make people in our community aware of the country of Belarus and why the YMCA is so important there," Wissing Harris said.

She added, "Because of our involvement, my husband and I have been invited to attend the European YMCA Field Group meeting in Krakow, Poland in November.

"We hope to expand our involvement to include more visits to Belarus so we can work with the members directly. Our ultimate goal is to host several children at our Burbank YMCA summer camps next summer.

"We want to "Adopt-a-Child" for the summer. That will take a lot of effort since we're talking airfare, host families and expenses."

Wissing Harris said, "The YMCA Belarus is very important to the children and young adults since they have very few programs that work with those ages. As we know in the USA, it is teens and young adults who need guiding principles and the YMCA provides a strong, balanced environment filled with values. The YMCA prepares children for the life ahead of them.

Silver belles in Tewksbury

"The Tewksbury Senior Center is undergoing reconstruction and expansion," notes the "Tewksbury Town Crier."

"Naturally, the Friends of the Elderly need funds to help defray the costs associated with this project. A group of senior women bravely decided to heed the call to arms and raise some funds, as well as some eyebrows in the process, by creating the calendar to end all calendars.

"Although the calendar is not a sanctioned Red Hat project, the models are Red Hot and all happen to be members of the Red Hat Society's local chapter, the Carnation Belles of Tewksbury. The Red Hats are a nationwide 'dis-organization' of women over 50 who are short on rules and long on their dedication to simply having fun (www.redhats.com). Ginny Desmond is the Queen of this Chapter and also serves as the Town Nurse.

"We chose the name Carnation Belles because Tewksbury was once known as the Carnation Capital and so it seemed only fitting." About the project, she comments, "It was a truly fabulous and incredibly fun experience. We wanted a calendar to be proud of; not one to be afraid of, so that's what we created. The fun, the friendship and the comradery we experienced making it will always be cherished."

"This 24 month calendar is G-rated.... It is a true work of art and proudly celebrates the glory and the beauty of the mature woman, who, as does fine wine, grows only more mellow with age.

"Originally inspired by the British movie Calendar Girls, this calendar is very tastefully and artfully done. Rather than rely on nudity as the movie did, they realized that mature women are glowing and glamorous no matter what the garb might be.

"The planning for this project began over a year ago on March of 2005. An initial interest meeting was held and 50 ladies attended. From that group, 35 volunteered and became the models who posed for this project. And just over a year later, the calendar is available toward the end of April for a mere $22 promising 24 months of enjoyable art. Copies are available for purchase at the Senior Center at 460 East Street, the Town Crier Office at 104 Lowell Street in Wilmington, selected stores and online through a website...."

Healthwise in Lynnfield

"An article routinely voted on each year at Town Meeting to set the compensation of elected officials (members of the Board of Selectmen and Board of Assessors), was discussed for several minutes after an amendment was made to change how the article is worded," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"Patricia Campbell of Patrice Lane moved that the word 'salary' be replaced with 'volunteer stipend,' effectively changing the employee status of persons in these positions who are eligible to receive health insurance benefits from the town.

"Campbell stated, 'This should be very clear that these people are volunteers and not employees.' She said serving as an elected Assessor or Selectman is not on this," he told the meeting. "Planning Board member Tom Hill said being a Selectman is not an easy job and they put in a lot of hours. 'It's foolish to take away this benefit,' he stated.

"Donald Gray of Longbow Rd. said it would be foolish for Town Meeting to vote for this without additional research.

"Mullen said this is a benefit that the Selectmen would have to vote to change.

"Selectman Chairman Bob MacKendrick, retired

Lynnfield Assistant Fire Chief, commented, 'I haven't taken the town's health insurance for 25 years. My wife's plan was better.'

"None of the Selectmen are enrolled in the town's health insurance which covers one of the three members

Breast Cancer Charity Auction this weekend

Three 2002 Stoneham High School graduates will join thousands of other dedicated women and men at the Boston Breast Cancer 3-Day benefiting the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation and the National Philanthropic Trust.

The participants will walk 60 miles during three days to raise breast cancer awareness and to raise money for critical research and community outreach programs.

In August Rebecca LaMattina, Kelley Joyce, and Erin Molloy are joining several thousand walkers for the Boston Breast Cancer 3-Day. Not only have they agreed to walk 60 miles over the course of 3 days, they have committed to fundraise a minimum of $10,000 to help fight breast cancer.

On July 21st, 2006 a silent auction will be held at The Crestview Banquet and Meeting Facilities in Woburn. The evening will be complete with music, dancing, dinner, and a cash bar. The silent auction will feature items like theatre packages, weekend getaways, sports memorabilia, and fine jewelry.

If you would like to attend this event and help support the fight against breast cancer please R.S.V.P. to ThinkPink06@gmail.com. Tickets are $40.

The Breast Cancer 3-Day is a weekend of hope, as we honor lives lost, celebrate survivors, promote breast cancer research and help bring breast cancer care to those who so desperately need it. Unfortunately, breast cancer has become an all too common occurrence among men and women throughout the world. Now is the time to take action, and put an end to this disease. The more funds we raise, the sooner we can end this fight.

PEABODY MUSEUM

UPCOMING EXHIBITIONS

New and upcoming exhibitions at the Peabody Essex Museum include "Of Gods and Mortals, Traditional Art from India" ongoing from July 15.

In India, art plays an integral role in the structure of daily life. Paintings, sculpture, textiles and other art forms are used in religious practices and to express prestige and social position.

The Peabody Essex Museum has recently tripled its gallery space for Indian art in order to reveal the rich diversity of the country's artistic tradition.

Featuring works from the 1800s to the present, this new installation includes the delicate embroideries, fine portraits and devotional images prized by maharajas, merchants, farmers and laborers.

The Peabody Essex Museum is located in Salem. For more information call 978-745-9500. AN EVENING WITH BIRDS IN NEWBURYPORT

The Parker River Wildlife Refuge with present "An Evening with Birds" on Tuesday, July 25th from 6 to 8 pm at 5 Ocean Avenue parking lot in Newburyport.

Join Sue McGrath of the Newburyport Birders for an introduction to the rich bird life at one of the Northeast's premier birding destinations.

Call 978-465-5753 and press "0" to talk to a staff member on the weather status prior to arrival.

THE 2006 LOWELL QUILT FESTIVAL

The New England Quilt Museum, the only in the region dedicated solely to the study and preservation of American quilt making, proudly presents the 2006 Lowell Quilt Festival, a Citywide Celebration of Quilts, August 3 - 6.

The biennial weekend event pays homage to the ever growing interest in quilt making, and finds its way into nearly every city block of historic downtown Lowell, the birthplace of the modern textile industry in America.

A truly walkable city, Lowell offers a fascinating cultural and historical background to view, learn and appreciate the art of quilting.

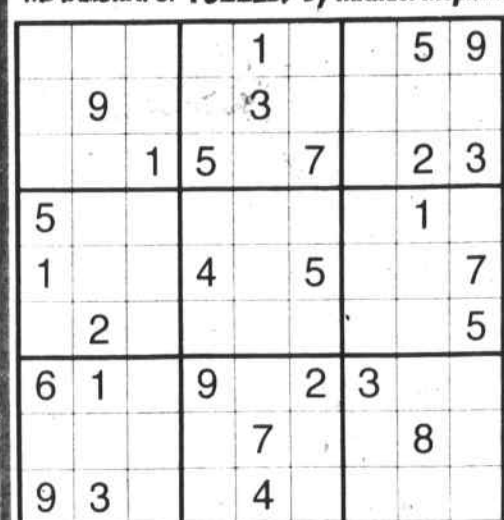

The first New England Images quilt show was launched in 1983 at the Topsfield Fair for 12 days. Since then the Auxiliary of The New England Quilt Museum has produced Images (juried quilt show) and its many components.

The 4 day multi-venue event, featuring exhibitions, classes, workshops, lectures, auctions, appraisals, vendors and a variety of special receptions, is almost entirely volunteer run by members of the museum's auxiliary.

by himself and several other credited screenwriters. As advertised, Superman does return from his five year journey in search of any remnants of his home planet and immediately lands in a conflict with arch-nemesis Lex Luthor, played both menacingly and amusingly by Kevin Spacey, who won his first Oscar working with Singer in "The Usual Suspects."

Singer begins slow, taking his time chronicling Superman's awkward transformation back into his Clark Kent identity. Meanwhile, Luthor assembles what he needs to dominate the planet.

Even after the lines have been drawn, however, the story throws in some unexpected curves. The narrative also pauses to give the characters enough background to make them fully rounded humans. The palpable personal chemistry between Superman and Lois Lane still hovers near the surface, making their brief encounters sweet, touching, and full of hidden emotion.

The superstar creators of "Superman Returns" are the special effects people who decorate our hero's various adventures. Within these colorful environments, a series of spectacular, elaborate visual creations can be found, from underwater chambers to hide-away crystal caves. Even the more mundane interiors, such as the Daily Planet Art Deco office, show spark and intelligence.

"NACHO LIBRE"

GRADE: *

Nacho Libre, which is co-written by Napoleon Dynamite's Jared Hess as well as Jerusha Hess and School of Rock writer Mike White is an embarrassment.

The movie is amateurish, excruciating to watch, and difficult to believe that men with comic sharp minds such as Hess, White and Jack Black could fall so short of the mark.

The story revolves around Nacho (Black), an orphan with no skills, who is a cook — and a bad one — at the monastery where he was raised.

The movie's jokes basically revolve around Nacho getting beat up in the ring as well as several revolving around flatulence.

The humor is strictly grade school. The movie is missing the wit and charm Hess, who directs, created for Napoleon Dynamite and White and Black used in School of Rock.

Black's phony Mexican accent is awful, but maybe that's part of the joke.

Nacho Libre is so bad that it could set U.S.-Mexican relations back 50 years, but it may solve the illegal worker situation as millions begin streaming out of the country to flee this film.

Nacho Libre is a sleeper hold on the careers of all involved.

"AN INCONVENIENT TRUTH"

GRADE: ****

There is a very scary movie in theaters these days, but it has nothing to do with the horror genre.

Great blend of old, new

This house is a wonderful blend of old and new, built in the 1880's but with many convenient and beautiful renovations. It was featured on "ASK THIS OLD HOUSE" for its spectacular original tin ceiling and original hardwood floors.

The spacious dining room has crown molding and an original built-in china cabinet with abundant storage space. The living room boasts plenty of space and a Vermont Castings gas stove with custom built slate hearth.

Chef's dream stainless steel appliances throughout the kitchen including natural gas stove top with electric convection oven, dishwasher, installed microwave/vent combo and a side by side refrigerator. The roomy kitchen overlooks a large Beacon Hill style patio which includes a natural gas hookup for an outside barbecue grill and a spacious, level, fully fenced in yard filled with annuals, mature perennials, beautiful trees and a large shed.

The newly renovated full bath has natural slate as well as top of the line hardware, fixtures and a roomy corner cabinet.

tures and a roomy corner cabinet.

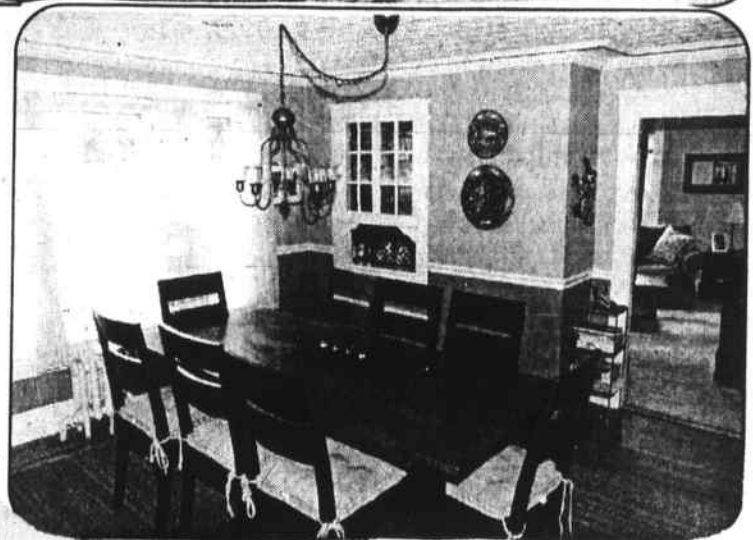

This home features a large first floor laundry room/bathroom and walk in closets. Custom honeycomb blinds were recently installed throughout. All three bedrooms are roomy and the house is in move-in condition.

It is near schools and the commuter rail and is only nine miles from Boston. When you step onto the patio you will enjoy the peaceful quiet of the backyard and the joy of owning a single family home with tons
